Statement of Jurisdiction

The appellant timely filed the appeal from a decision of the Cook County Board of Review pursuant to section 16-160 of the Property Tax Code (35 ILCS 200/16-160) challenging the assessment for the 2012 tax year. The Property Tax Appeal Board finds that it has jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter of the appeal.

Findings of Fact

The subject of this appeal is an 8-unit condominium building. The building is 109 years old. The property has a 4,258 square foot site and is located in Chicago, Hyde Park Township, Cook County. The subject is classified as a class 2-99 property under the Cook County Real Property Assessment Classification Ordinance.

The appellant's overvaluation appeal is based on recent sales of condominiums from the subject building. In support of this argument the appellant submitted limited evidence disclosing 6 of the condominium units sold seven times from March 2009 to March 2012 for prices ranging from $10,000 to $200,000 for a purported combined total price of $151,000, when excluding the March 2009 sale for $200,000. The September 2011 sale included the purchase of three units. In estimating the market value of the subject property the appellant deducted $13,590 from the total purchase price for personal property to arrive at a total consideration for the realty of $137,410. The appellant then divided $137,410 by the percentage of ownership of the units that sold of 74.54% to arrive at a full value for the condominium of $184,344 and an assessment for the condominium of $16,591 using a 9% level of assessment.

The board of review submitted its "Board of Review Notes on Appeal" disclosing the total assessment for the subject of $80,378. The subject's assessment reflects a market value of $803,780, when using the level of assessments for class 2 property of 10% under the Cook County Real Property Assessment Classification Ordinance.

In support of its contention of the correct assessment the board of review provided an analysis using six sales of condominium units in the subject's condominium that sold from December 2007 to March 2012 for prices ranging from $31,740 to $215,000 per unit. The single sale that included three units was also submitted by the appellant. These properties had either 11.83% or 12.72% of ownership interest for a combined interest totaling 74.54%. In estimating the value for the subject property the analyst calculated the total purchase price of the sales to be $705,000. A deduction of $14,100 was made for personal property to arrive at a total adjusted consideration of $690,900. The board of review analyst then divided the total adjusted consideration by the percentage of ownership for the units that sold to arrive at a full value of the condominium of $926,885. The analyst then multiplied the full value of the condominium by 100% for the "percentage under appeal" to arrive at a value for the subject of $926,885 which would result in a final total assessment of $92,689 when using the 10% level of assessment for class 2-99 property.

Conclusion of Law

The appellant contends the market value of the subject property is not accurately reflected in its assessed valuation. When market value is the basis of the appeal the value of the property must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence. 86 Ill.Admin.Code §1910.63(e). Proof of market value may consist of an appraisal of the subject property, a recent sale, comparable sales or construction costs. 86 Ill.Admin.Code §1910.65(c). The Board finds the appellant met this burden of proof and a reduction in the subject's assessment is warranted.

The Board finds the best evidence of market value to be the six sales presented by the appellant, which included the parties' common sale that included three units, which occurred from August 2011 to March 2012 for prices ranging from $10,000 to $34,130 for a total consideration of $151,000. These six sales represent 74.54% of ownership in the condominium. The Board finds that by dividing the total consideration by the percentage of ownership of the units that recently sold results in a full value for the condominium of $202,576. The Board finds the assessment for each unit under appeal is to be calculated by multiplying the full value by each unit's percentage of ownership in the condominium and then debasing the result using the Cook County Real Property Assessment Classification Ordinance level of assessment for class 2-99 property of 10%. The Board finds there is no evidence in the record to support a reduction for personal property from the purchase price. Furthermore, the Board gives no weight to the remaining sales submitted by the parties due to the fact the sales did not occur proximate in time to the assessment date at issue.

In conclusion the Board finds a reduction to the assessment of each of the units is justified.

This is a final administrative decision of the Property Tax Appeal Board which is subject to review in the Circuit Court or Appellate Court under the provisions of the Administrative Review Law (735 ILCS 5/3-101 et seq.) and section 16-195 of the Property Tax Code.
